

AshleyLukis

Ashley Lukis is an attorney at GrayRobinson, P.A., where she practices civil litigation before state and federal trial courts, appellate courts, and state administrative tribunals. Ashley has been with GrayRobinson for more than a decade, starting as a summer associate while in law school and now serving as Deputy Chair of the firm's Litigation Section.

Ashley's legal practice routinely involves constitutional questions and issues of statutory authority, federalism, and public policy—experience that provides a unique insight into the intersection of public governance and the law.

Ashley earned both her law degree and undergraduate degree from Florida State University, graduating with both degrees magna cum laude.

Ashley lives in Tallahassee, Florida with her husband and their two children.
